

Rugby World Cup Campaign

"Kick Lag to Touch" — multi-channel campaign, Autumn 2023

Campaign overview

Built around the 2023 Rugby World Cup, the campaign positioned County Broadband's full-fibre service as the way to watch every match without lag or buffering, under the line "Kick Lag to Touch". It ran across a dedicated landing page, an email nurture sequence, direct mail, organic and paid social media, community posters and a bespoke online game, tying every channel back to the same core offers: the 600Mbps tariff, a £50 cashback incentive, and a competition to win VIP hospitality tickets to a Twickenham Six Nations fixture.

Channels & tactics

- Landing page — two calls to action in the hero block (Buy Now / Play Now) across nine content blocks covering the 600Mbps tariff, cashback offer, VIP ticket competition and the game.
- Email — a 3–4 part nurture sequence to leads already in the CRM, covering the campaign launch, the cashback offer, the hospitality competition and a final-call reminder.
- Direct mail — two formats: an A4 mailer die-cut into the shape of a rugby ball, and a minimal A6 invite, both sent to homes in newly built full-fibre areas.
- Social media — a rugby ball-passing video repurposed as an Instagram Reel, a Meta highlight and a YouTube Short, alongside reactive Rugby World Cup fixture updates, rugby-terms explainer posts and an always-on organic engagement strategy across Instagram, Facebook, TikTok, YouTube and LinkedIn.
- Paid media — four Meta static images and four video creatives (Mesh, Game, £50 Cashback and Win Tickets), plus a TikTok rugby-passing video split across a Traffic and an Engagement campaign.
- Community & posters — printed notices for community boards in newly built areas, alongside a themed activity pack for a local rugby club partnership.
- Game — concept, design and build of Dodge Tackler, a playable browser game in which the player dodges incoming tackles to race a rugby ball to the try line, run both as a customer-facing external game and as an internal staff engagement activity with a leaderboard.

Results

15 sales

confirmed (Meta-attributed sales still to be finalised)

129 registrations

external game · 49 unique players, 2.63 plays each, 10.6% CTR to landing page

46% open rate

37,400 DMs

99 QR scans · 0.26% engagement, vs 0.12% industry average

1,211 plays

internal game · 45 unique staff, 26.91 plays each, 72 hours of play

300,000+ views

5-part email sequence to 6,000 contacts · 2.41% CTR

356,301 impressions

Meta · 6,623 link clicks, 36p cost-per-click, £2,378.72 spend

TikTok rugby ball-pass video · campaign's most-watched organic content

42,745 reach organic social, vs a 17,500 target · 10.86% Facebook engagement

Key learnings for future campaigns

- Improve the external game's form-completion rate with clearer incentives and a streamlined registration flow, and diversify device support to bring in more mobile players.
- A/B test and personalise the email sequence to build on its already strong open rate.
- Keep adapting TikTok campaign objectives (traffic vs engagement) to match each stage of the campaign, since the two performed very differently on cost and outcome.
- Continue to lean on Meta for reach and awareness, where cost-per-click and impression volume were both strong.