It might be a good idea to target areas with ongoing Christmas street events, such as Christmas markets.

CBB's Santa Claus could deliver presents and gather participants' information by collecting small details like their names, surnames, and email addresses (by iPad) through door-to-door interactions.

CHRISTMAS CAMPAIGN IDEAS: (My favourite!)

Connecting to the North Pole: A Magical Virtual Christmas Experience

Imagine the joy of hosting live virtual meetings that enable children and individuals of all ages to converse with none other than Santa Claus himself, projected onto a larger-than-life billboard. The opportunity to make gift requests and engage directly with Santa based in the North Pole adds an enchanting touch to the holiday season.

I came across this initiative by an American Airlines company that perfectly captures the spirit of Christmas through their creative campaign, which I found truly astonishing! (video link below)

While implementing a campaign of such grandeur might pose financial constraints, the idea of a live, on-screen Santa Claus presence is truly captivating (video segment: 0.40 to 1.40 sec).

WestJet Christmas Miracle: Real-time Giving - YouTube

The concept (reminiscent of a virtual Santa's grotto) serves as a direct link to the enchanting North Pole experience. The core concept of connecting individuals with Santa Claus through virtual means holds immense potential and is well connected to our brand, creating a memorable and immersive Christmas experience.

In summary, the idea of establishing a virtual connection to the North Pole, enabling real-time interactions with Santa Claus, is undoubtedly appealing. The essence of the concept shows promise and is well-suited to our brand, promising a magical and memorable Christmas holiday experience for all. Just like in all traditional Santa's grottos, a gift is included!

Craig's Suggestion:

The effectiveness of malls might be limited, as we could potentially reach only 2-3% of the target customers who are genuinely interested. It might be more advantageous to consider hosting the event in a select few village halls. This way, families can fully immerse themselves in a Christmas-themed experience, complete with festive music, sweets, hot chocolate, and a delightful holiday atmosphere. Additionally, we can establish a connection to the North Pole by incorporating a visit from Santa Claus.

If this concept gains approval, Craig can provide valuable support by curating a list of the top 10 recommended village halls that align with the vision of the activity.
